Chinatown Revitalisation Project making great progress

Stage Two of the Chinatown Revitalisation Project is progressing well, with construction works taking place quickly and on schedule.

Despite wet weather, construction company Georgiou Group and associated local contractors continue to work on site to ensure quick progress is made.

Work is continuing on Short Street, Carnarvon Street North and Napier Terrace, with the first asphalt placed for the project and trafficable pavers installed.

An important change in relation to access to Chinatown is the reopening of the western end of Short Street, meaning motorists can access the Paspaley Plaza carpark again from the sliproad across from the Broome Visitor Centre.

Shire of Broome deputy president Desiree Male said the easiest way to access Chinatown's shops, the post office and associated businesses during the construction period was to use the two-storey, undercover carpark at the Paspaley Plaza.

"It's really encouraging to see construction works progressing on time and budget," she said.

"I'd like to reiterate the importance of supporting Chinatown's businesses as the disruptions take place and to make a conscious effort to Buy Local.

"The Paspaley Plaza two-storey carpark is also the best place for people to park to get quick access to the heart of our town centre."

Last chance to take RRRP site selection survey

The Shire of Broome's online survey as part of the Community Review process for the new Regional Resource Recovery Park (RRRP) is closing on Saturday and it's vitally important you have your say on our town's future waste management needs.

A six-week Community Review process commenced on February 15, with the Broome community invited to review the work the Shire has undertaken to date and have an input on this critical infrastructure project.

The survey will gather community feedback on several components of the RRRP, including the investigations carried out to date and the site selection process.

The Shire has hosted Community Engagement Sessions, meeting with key members of Environs

Kimberley, Coconut Well residents and the general community to answer questions on the project.

Shire representatives also hosted a series of pop-up information displays at Paspaley Plaza, the Broome Courthouse Markets and the Boulevard Shopping Centre.

Shire of Broome deputy president Desiree Male said feedback from the survey would be shared after the engagement process to provide an update on findings to date.

"We want to ensure the direction we take with the RRRP is safe for the community and the environment and we therefore encourage as many residents as possible to take the time to complete the survey," she said.

The survey is open until Saturday, March 27 - for more information, visit www.rrrp.com.au.
