I have called the West Kimberley home for my whole life, having been born and bred here. I am proud of my rich cultural background, growing up near Beagle Bay and Bidyadanga. I have experience in both the good and the bad of living in our beloved community, and the reason why I have put my hand up, is to be part of driving and implementing changes that will benefit our diverse and growing community.

I have worked on country as a ranger, and for both State and Federal Government as a policy officer, giving me broad experience both on the ground and in bureaucracy. I have held leadership positions for my community, representing at the International Union for Conservation of Nature, National Indigenous Youth Parliament, and National Climate Change Summit.

I am passionate about ensuring the voices of our whole community are heard and commit to engaging meaningfully on the issues that matter. Bringing diverse voices to the table will ensure economic inclusion and a bright future for all.
